Imperial College School of Medicine
Welfare Vice Chair - Wellbeing
Representative

My name is Candy Lin, and I aspire to become your next Welfare Vice Chair Wellbeing Representative. I am currently a first year medical student and I strongly believe that my manifesto will lead to meaningful changes within Imperial College School of Medicine.

First and foremost, I would like to promote safeguarding, diversity, and inclusion by raising awareness and educating students with the current policies. I would also like to review the current policies and reinstate the code of conduct to maintain a compliant and united student body to keep students safe. It will also be my priority to ensure and encourage collaboration between students to develop a holistic wellbeing of the student body. I will also aim to develop transparency and facilitate communication between the students and the faculty, to make certain that our needs are catered for. Becoming a part of the Welfare Team will mean that I will collect students' feedback and alert faculty of any issues that are affecting and impacting students' experience. As a Welfare Vice Chair Wellbeing Representative, it is my responsibility to maintain the constitution, roles, responsibilities, integrity and accountability to both the faculty and our students. It is high on my agenda to act to support the student Union and be a contact point for students to voice any concerns that they may have. I will be the positive voice in prompting student wellbeing within ICSM and advocate for student led changes. Be the change you want to see!
