

VOTE FOR YOUR ACADEMIC REPRESENTATIVE: LILI GYOPAR

introduction: who I am

Hi everyone!

I'm Lili Gyopar, your fellow medic fresher from Hungary.

Some of you may recognise me as "Lili from the group chat" – yes, that's me – and I'd love to be your first year academic representative!

Why me?

I'm writing this during week 3 of med school so I'm just as new to all of this as you are, but I believe I am a good fit for academic rep.

Even from the little time we've had on campus, I've heard the same topics popping up regarding academics and the content covered. I think it's incredibly important that this feedback gets back to faculty so we can find a middle ground together – one that the students and faculty are both satisfied with.

The goal is the same: we all want to make the most of our experiences at med school, which is naturally heavily influenced by the quantity and quality of teaching. Making academics the best we can is a win for everyone: we perform better, stress less and have more time for things that are actually fun!

As former student council representative (and eventually leader) throughout secondary school and sixth form, I know what listening to feedback, negotiating and advocating for change entails. I vow to represent you to the best of my abilities so your voices can truly be heard.

We're all in the same boat, so let's try to make the journey as enjoyable as possible!

What I will do for you:

I promise that I will do the following to the best of my abilities:

- Actively listen to your thoughts, opinions and feedback
- Advocate for you to make sure your voices are heard
- Negotiate in an effective way to best achieve our collective academic goals
- Provide regular updates so you can stay well-informed about current issues and see progress
- Maintain full transparency about the work I do
- Support you and work together closely with the ICSMSU Academics Team
